

The future of the First Friday

As you will all be aware, the First Fridays at Kilmeston Village Hall have been temporarily suspended since the implementation of the “rule of six” and now for the duration of the lockdown. It’s our intention to re-start as soon as the virus and the law permit.

When we re-start, there will be no further handling of cash. You will need to bring your contactless card. Those of you who have money in the “kitty” will be able to use that credit and, thereafter we will ask you to pay with your card.

We apologise for any inconvenience this may add to the already trying experience brought upon us by the pandemic. However, as many have already discovered, contactless can be easier and safer than travelling (and worse, having to queue) to get cash.

When the situation changes, we will publish procedures for protecting customers and bar staff according to the requirements of the guidance that the government issues for the next phase.
